DISTRICT OF NEVADA

UNITED STATES OF AMERICA,

Case No. 3:17-cr-00003-LRH-WGC

Respondent/Plaintiff,

ORDER

v.

RICKY CARTER, JR.

Petitioner/Defendant.

Before the Court is petitioner Ricky Carter, Jr.'s ("Carter") motion, to vacate, set aside, or correct his sentence pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 2255 (ECF No. 79). Carter filed his motion considering the recent ruling in Rehaif v. United States, 139 S. Ct. 2191 (2019). The Government opposed (ECF No. 84), arguing that Carter's claims are procedurally barred because he did not raise them on direct appeal. In his reply (ECF No. 88), Carter maintains that the constitutional errors are structural.

For the reasons contained within this Order, the Court denies his motion and denies him a certificate of appealability.

I. BACKGROUND

On November 30, 2016, Reno police officers conducted a traffic stop on Carter. ECF No. 84. During the stop, officers saw a firearm in plain view; specifically, a 9-millimeter Glock 17 semi-automatic pistol. Id. Carter is an ex-felon, and on January 4, 2017, Carter was indicted by a grand jury for unlawfully possessing a firearm. ECF No. 1.

1 Carter elected to proceed to a jury trial, and in June 2017, a jury returned a verdict of guilty
 2 of Unlawful Possession of a Firearm by a Previously Convicted Felon. ECF No. 48. This Court
 3 sentenced Carter to 120 months' imprisonment followed by three years supervised release. ECF
 4 Nos. 56, 57. Carter appealed the judgment on various constitutional and procedural grounds, but 5 the Ninth Circuit affirmed his conviction. ECF No. 77. Carter now seeks to overturn his sentence
 6 under 28 U.S.C. § 2255. ECF No. 79.

7 II. LEGAL STANDARD

8 Pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 2255, a petitioner may file a motion requesting the court which 9 imposed sentence to vacate, set aside, or correct the sentence. 28 U.S.C. § 2255(a). Such a motion 10 may be brought on the following grounds: (1) "the sentence was imposed in violation of the 11 Constitution or laws of the United States;" (2) "the court was without jurisdiction to impose such 12 sentence;" (3) "the sentence was in excess of the maximum authorized by law;" or (4) the sentence
 13 "is otherwise subject to collateral attack." Id.; see United States v. Berry, 624 F.3d 1031, 1038 (9th 14 Cir. 2010). When a petitioner seeks relief pursuant to a right newly recognized by a decision of 15 the United States Supreme Court, a one-year statute of limitations applies. 28 U.S.C.
 16 § 2255(f). That one-year limitation period begins to run from "the date on which the right asserted 17 was initially recognized by the Supreme Court." Id. § 2255(f)(3).

18 On June 21, 2019, the Supreme Court decided Rehaif, overturning established Ninth Circuit
 19 precedent. 139 S. Ct. 2191. In the past, the government was only required to prove that a defendant
 20 knowingly possessed a firearm under 18 U.S.C. §§ 922(g) and 924(a)(2). Id. at 2200. Now, under 21 Rehaif, the government "must prove both that the defendant knew he possessed a firearm and that 22 he knew that he belonged to the relevant category of persons barred from possessing a firearm."
 23 Id.

24 III. DISCUSSION

25 Carter argues that by leaving out the new Rehaif element from the original indictment, this 26 Court lacked jurisdiction. ECF No. 79, at 18. He further alleges the omission in the indictment
 27 violated his Fifth Amendment guarantee that a grand jury find probable cause to support all the 28 necessary elements of a crime and not to be tried by a faulty indictment. Id. at 19–22. Carter also

1 alleges a violation of his Sixth Amendment right to effective assistance of counsel and to be
 2 informed of the nature and cause of the accusation. Id. Lastly, Carter argues, because the jury
 3 instructions did not contain the Rehaif element, his conviction violated the Due Process clause. Id.
 4 at 26.

5 A. Jurisdiction

6 This Court “has jurisdiction of all crimes cognizable under the authority of the United 7 States....” Lamar v. United States, 240 U.S. 60, 65 (1916). Any “objection that the indictment does
 8 not charge a crime against the United States goes only to the merits of the case,” and does not
 9 deprive the court of jurisdiction. Id.; see also United States v. Cotton, 535 U.S. 625, 630 (2020)
 10 (reiterating Lamar). Quite importantly, the Ninth Circuit and decisions within the District of 11 Nevada have relied on the principle announced in Cotton in cases considering the aftermath of 12 Rehaif. See, e.g., United States v. Espinoza, 816 F. App’x 82, 84 (9th Cir. 2020) (“[T]he 13 indictment’s omission of the knowledge of status requirement did not deprive the district court of 14 jurisdiction.”); see also United States v. Miller, Case No. 3:15-cr-00047-HDM-WGC (D. Nev.
 15 Dec. 8, 2020); United States v. Baustamante, Case No. 2:16-cr-00268-APG (D. Nev. Dec. 7, 16 2020).

17 Therefore, pursuant to Ninth Circuit precedent and various other decisions in this District,
 18 the Court had and continues to have jurisdiction over Carter’s case despite Rehaif.

19 B. Procedural Default

20 The government argues Carter’s constitutional claims are procedurally defaulted. ECF
 21 No. 84, at 4. While a defendant certainly can question the underlying legality of his sentence or 22 conviction, one who does not on direct appeal is procedurally defaulted from doing so unless they 23 can demonstrate: (1) cause and prejudice; or (2) actual innocence. See Bousley v. U.S., 523 U.S.
 24 614, 622 (1998) (citations omitted). “‘Cause’ is a legitimate excuse for the default; ‘prejudice’ is 25 actual harm resulting from the alleged constitutional violation.” Magby v. Wawrzaszek, 741 F.2d
 26 240, 244 (9th Cir. 1984).

27 Carter did not challenge the validity of the indictment and/or jury instructions on direct 28 appeal, but instead, argues his claims have not procedurally defaulted because he can demonstrate

1 cause and prejudice, or, in the alternative, the omission in his indictment is a structural error and
2 therefore only requires a showing of cause. Each argument is addressed in turn.

3 1. Cause

4 Carter can likely demonstrate cause. Rehaif overturned long standing precedent in the 5 Ninth Circuit, and the decision’s constitutional consequences were not “reasonably available to 6 counsel.” Reed v. Ross, 468 U.S. 1, 16 (1984).

7 2. Prejudice

8 Still, Carter cannot demonstrate prejudice. The Ninth Circuit has found in numerous 9 scenarios, that even if a defendant had been aware that the Government would need to prove the 10 knowledge-of-status element—or if it needed to be included as a jury instruction—there is no
11 reasonable probability that the outcome would have been different. See United States v. Espinoza,
12 816 F. App’x 82, 84 (9th Cir. 2020) (holding that “the failure of the indictment and plea colloquy 13 to include the element of knowledge of felon status does not require us to vacate [the]
14 conviction...”); United States v. Schmidt, 792 F. App’x 521, 522 (9th Cir. 2020) (“Although 15 [defendant] did not argue below that the government was required to prove [defendant] knew he 16 was a felon, under any standard of review there was overwhelming evidence that [defendant] knew 17 he was a felon when he possessed the firearms at issue in this case.”); United States v. Tuan Ngoc
18 Luong, 965 F.3d 973, 989 (9th Cir. 2020) (finding in the trial context that, “even if the district
19 court had instructed the jury on the knowledge-of-status element, there is no reasonable probability 20 that the jury would have reached a different verdict...”). In other words, the Ninth Circuit has 21 repeatedly found no actual harm resulted from alleged constitutional violations stemming from the 22 decision in Rehaif in cases involving comparable facts to Carter’s.

23 Here, at trial, Carter stipulated to his prior conviction which was punishable by 24 imprisonment for a term exceeding one year. ECF No. 69, at 76. Notably, Carter testified at trial,
25 and acknowledged his prior convictions, including being an ex-felon in possession. Id. at 157–58.
26 Carter also testified that he knew, because of his prior convictions, he “couldn’t possess the gun
27 or have it in [his control at any time or even have it around [him],” ECF No. 69, at 160. Therefore,
28 the Court is not persuaded that the inclusion of the Rehaif element would have directed the jury to

1 reach a different verdict. See Tuan Ngoc Luong, 965 F.3d at 989 (recognizing that because of the 2 defendant's prior felony convictions, the omission of the Rehaif element did not affect any
 3 "substantial rights, nor the fairness, integrity, or public reputation of the [trial]." (citations 4 omitted)).

5 Accordingly, there is no reasonable probability, but for the Rehaif error, that the outcome
 6 of the proceeding would have been different. Therefore, because Carter has not demonstrated both 7 cause and prejudice, he procedurally defaulted on his claims challenging the legality of his 8 conviction.

9 C. Structural Error

10 Alternatively, Carter argues the errors are structural, therefore only requiring a showing of 11 cause. "[C]ertain errors, termed structural errors, might affect substantial rights regardless of their 12 actual impact on an appellant's trial." United States v. Marcus, 560 U.S. 258, 263 (2010) (citations
 13 omitted). Structural errors go to the very heart of the trial and are not "simply an error in the trial
 14 process itself." Arizona v. Fulimante, 499 U.S. 279, 310 (1991).

15 While the Ninth Circuit has not decided whether the knowledge-of-status element in Rehaif
 16 presents issues of structural error, numerous other circuits have concluded it does not. See United 17 States v. Nasir, 2020 WL 7041357, at *19, n.30 (3d Cir. Dec. 1, 2020); United States v. Coleman,
 18 961 F.3d 1024, 1030 (8th Cir. 2020); United States v. Payne, 964 F.3d 652, 657 (7th Cir. 2020);
 19 United States v. Lavalais, 960 F.3d 180, 187 (5th Cir. 2020); United States v. Trujillo, 960 F.3d
 20 1196, 1207 (10th Cir. 2020).

21 The Court agrees with these circuit courts and concludes that Rehaif likely does not involve 22 the limited class of errors the Supreme Court has deemed structural.

23 E. Certificate of Appealability is Denied

24 To proceed with an appeal of this Order, Carter must receive a certificate of appealability
 25 from the Court. 28 U.S.C. § 2253(c)(1); FED. R. APP. P. 22; 9TH CIR. R. 22-1; Allen v. Ornoski,
 26 435 F.3d 946, 950-951 (9th Cir. 2006). For the Court to grant a certificate of appealability, the 27 petitioner must make "a substantial showing of the denial of a constitutional right." 28 U.S.C. §
 28 2253(c)(2); Slack v. McDaniel, 529 U.S. 473, 483-84 (2000). And the petitioner bears the burden

1 of demonstrating that the issues are debatable among reasonable jurists; that a court could resolve
2 the issues differently; or that the issues are “adequate to deserve encouragement to proceed
3 further.” Slack, 529 U.S. at 483-84 (citation omitted).

4 As discussed above, Carter has failed to raise a meritorious challenge to his conviction and 5 sentence pursuant to the Ninth Circuit’s decision in Rehaif. As such, the Court finds that he has 6 failed to demonstrate that reasonable jurists would find the Court’s assessment of his claims
7 debatable or wrong. See Allen, 435 F.3d at 950–51. Therefore, the Court denies Carter a certificate
8 of appealability.

9 III. CONCLUSION

10 IT IS THEREFORE ORDERED that Carter’s motion to vacate, set aside, or correct his 11 sentence pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 2255 (ECF No. 79) is DENIED.

12 IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that a certificate of appealability is DENIED.

13 IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that the Clerk of Court ENTER a separate and final
14 Judgment denying Carter’s § 2255 motion. See Kingsbury v. United States, 900 F.3d 1147, 1150
15 (9th Cir. 2018).

16 IT IS SO ORDERED.
